

A world map is centered on a piece of parchment paper, which is placed on a dark wooden surface. The map is filled with various spices and herbs, such as red chili peppers, green herbs, and brown seeds, representing different regions. Surrounding the map are several wooden spoons containing different types of spices, including yellow turmeric, red paprika, and brown seeds. There are also whole spices like walnuts, star anise, and garlic cloves scattered around the map. The overall scene is a rich and colorful display of global culinary ingredients.

World Cookery

Contact Janet Peers or Dorothy Skinner
for more information

The group is full at present with 8 people.
Please feel free to start another group.